

As a HR professional or L&D facilitator you'll know budgets are tight, time is precious, and people want simplification.

Our solution: a brain and budget-friendly learning tool that was founded in New Zealand and applied globally. This certification course enables you to deliver a mindset-shifting workshop with a process you can trust to deliver behaviour change. The Why are you like that? workshops have been delivered thousands of times in different global and learning contexts.

Workshop participants get it, like it, use it, and remember it.

"To date I've facilitated 24 TetraMap sessions since being accredited, each session bringing different learning and understanding every time. I've witnessed some momentous 'lightbulb' moments for some people, which makes my day. The biggest win for me with TetraMap is that it's just so applicable in the workplace, delegates remember their preference, and are still having discussion about it 6 months down the line."
